The phrase “poor in spirit” can be confusing. Think of it in this sense – poor in spirit means depending on God’s providence and not depending on our own self-reliance. Being detached from earthly things (power, money, and comfort) and being attached to heavenly things (charity, sacrifice, and mercy).

We have heard that many of you are already dreaming of your gardens, and it won't be long until you are outside with your hands in the dirt. Over the growing season, we are so happy to receive fresh produce from many of our parishioners and donors with green thumbs. This year, please consider planting an extra row for MCO.

If you are interested in growing some food for local families in need, please contact our Pantry Manager Robyn, or our Garden Coordinator Christine, for suggestions on which vegetables are most needed and popular with our clients.

Everyday Metanoia

Welcome to the 4th Sunday in Ordinary Time. Both 1 Corinthians and the Gospel of Matthew focus on opposites. What is valued by those in power, in society, is not what is important to God. God seeks those who say a trusting yes; those who embrace the words, 'I have come to do your will.'

Pope Leo spoke about this last week in relation to Jesus calling the first disciples and His continuous call to us, His children. "This...speaks directly to the experience of believers today. In our lives, both individually and as a Church, interior struggles or circumstances we deem unfavorable can lead us to believe that it is not the right time to proclaim the Gospel, to make a decision, to make a choice, or to change a situation. Such hesitation risks leading to paralysis. In this way...we risk becoming paralyzed by indecision or imprisoned by excessive prudence, whereas the Gospel calls us to dare to trust. God is at work at all times; every moment is God's time, even when we do not feel ready or when the situation seems unfavorable." This is the radical call to discipleship and evangelization with which we are dismissed from Mass each week: to carry on into the secular world as the hands and feet and heart of Jesus.

Believing that God's Word is living is an important part of what Paul tries to convey in his letters and in his ministry. But here at the start of his response to the division happening in Corinth, Paul seeks first to unite the Corinthians in Christ through the image of the cross. In highlighting the paradox of the cross Paul invites them to embrace the love of God through radical faith rather than words, signs and wonders. The Greeks of Corinth thought themselves to be intellectuals who were won over by tricks of words or crafty debates. The Jews of Corinth thought themselves to be God's elite, his hand-chosen people who relied on signs from God rather than faith in God. George T. Montague, SM in his commentary on First Corinthians sums this up, "The tendency of the Jews who opposed the ministry of Jesus and that of Paul was to demand signs, miracles or spectacular deeds of power, and the Greeks look for wisdom, something that will captivate, but not disturb the cultured mind."

God's love, radically shown in the crucifixion of Jesus, the paradox of the cross, demands a reciprocal radical action on our part which moves us out of our insulated self-centered world. I love how Paul begins this section of his letter, "Consider your own calling, brothers and sisters." Paul is reminding them that they did not come to know Jesus through their own wisdom and intellect, but rather through embracing that which Jesus lived and taught (the Beatitudes): humility, righteousness, mercy, love and peace; that which the world loudly contradicts. Fr. Eric shared how meaningful the song, The Summons, is to him. It a clear invitation from God that awaits our response, 'Yes, Lord, here I am; I have come to do your will.' We typically only sing the first few verses, because we are an impatient people and if someone wants us to know something, it had better be at the beginning, right? We also believe ourselves to be important people, who, if we give time to God, it is limited to 60 minutes (or less is even better.) In so doing, we miss the beauty and the wisdom of verse 4 and God's hope-filled and hoped for response revealed in verse 5. God is calling us right now. Verse 4: "Will you love the 'you' you hide if I but call your name? Will you quell the fear inside and never be the same? Will you use the faith you've found to reshape the world around, through my sight and touch and sound in you and you in me?" Verse 5: "Lord, your summons echoes true when you but call my name. Let me turn and follow you and never be the same. In your company I'll go; where your love and footsteps show. Thus I'll move and live and grow in you and you in me."

It is just as scary today to accept God's call, as it was for the first disciples and the citizens of Corinth. The world continues to shout: power, prestige and money until we are brainwashed into believing that there is no other way and that whomever we step on along the way was just inconsequential and necessary damage. That is not God - never has been. He fashioned both Adam and Eve out of love and even when they disobeyed and sinned he showed mercy and never stopped trying to repair our relationship, culminating in the paradox of the cross. Jesus, born to be the Savior of the world, did so not as a warrior winning a battle, but as a "condemned criminal subjected to the most painful and shameful death that the Romans could devise... The message of the cross is foolishness for those who are perishing, but for those who are being saved, it reveals a God of love who thrusts himself into humans' deepest fears, suffering and death and leads them out of their deepest alienation: sin." Both the cross and the resurrection are a part of our salvation, so why is Paul focusing on the cross? Because "resurrection is a phenomenon that goes beyond our normal human experience. Suffering does not: it is the lot of every human being." That is just as true today as it was at any time in history. It is in our suffering that we share something with every other human being past, present and future. And if we listen and respond to God's call, it is in this shared humanity that we find the love of God and share that love with each other, radically changing the world. Together, in love and through love, we can show the world the strength and power of love. Here I am Lord, I have come to do your will. May God bless your prayer time this week!

Come Holy Spirit! Praying with you always,

Tracy Huk, Parish Life Coordinator

Holy Communion and Flu Season

In light of recent reports of increased cases of flu and other contagious illnesses within our communities, we wish to remind you to exercise prudent care for one another while remaining faithful to the Church's liturgical life. The sharing in the one Bread and the one Cup is a powerful sign of our unity in Christ and of the fullness of the Eucharist. At the same time, the Church teaches that the fullness of Christ—Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity—is received under either species alone. Those who are ill, who may be experiencing symptoms, or who have concerns for their own health or the health of others are reminded that we Live Stream our weekend liturgies. If you choose to be physically present, please wear a mask and refrain from receiving from the Chalice, as an act of care for the wider community. Let us remain united in prayer for the health and well-being of all members of our communities.

Calling All Volunteers

Can you give a couple of hours once or twice per month to help those with food insecurity right here in our city?

Our volunteer shifts only last about two hours, morning or afternoon, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, or Thursdays.

Our pantry volunteers organize incoming donations, check expiration dates, stock shelves, bag up snacks, toiletries, produce, and pack the food boxes.

Our distribution volunteers add the fresh items to the food boxes on the dock, greet our clients as they arrive to pick up their groceries, and help load the cars.

Our volunteers in the office answer the door and phones, schedule clients for their food pick-ups, assemble and distribute the homeless bags, organize clothing donations and other supplies.

We are in need of more volunteers, in the pantry, the distribution dock, and in the office. We promise you will never be bored!

Contact us if you would like a tour and maybe try out a shift to see if it is a cause you would enjoy. You won't regret giving your time to help families in need! 319-739-5490.

February 1, 2026 • 4th Sunday in Ordinary Time • Matthew 5:1-12

Blessed Are We

When Jesus sees the crowds who are following him, he goes up a mountain. He wants to make sure everyone can see and hear him as he tells them how they can find happiness.

Moses went up a mountain to receive the Ten Commandments, and in Matthew's Gospel, Jesus went up a mountain to give us the Beatitudes. The Ten Commandments are a set of laws to help us live in harmony with God's love. The Beatitudes are broader and more subtle. They offer a vision and suggest a self-giving attitude that goes beyond the Commandments.

The Beatitudes talk about the poor and those who mourn, those who are hungry for justice, those who are merciful and peacemakers, those who are pure in heart and those who are persecuted. Jesus tells us that all of these people will be happy. They will be blessed. How can this be?

Perhaps Jesus is just reminding us that life is difficult. Each of us will face our own hardships. We need to remember that nothing—not poverty or deep loss or suffering, not the worst injustice—can triumph over us. Jesus offers his own strength and endurance, his assurance that we will not be alone. We are blessed. We are gifted not only with faith but hope.

The Beatitudes ask us to be meek, not the doormat sort of meek, but the biblical idea of meek—tolerant and unassuming. We are to be poor in spirit. Money and possessions should not own us. We are to be peacemakers and hunger and thirst after justice. The Beatitudes offer a positive way to respond to difficult life experiences. They encourage us to live in a self-possessed, positive way.

Finding the kingdom of God is not just about keeping the Ten Commandments; it's keeping the commandments with the right attitudes—the Beatitudes.

FAMILY RESPONSE

Talk to your family about what difficulties they are facing this week. Encourage each other to be tolerant. Pray together to find ways your family members can be peacemakers.

PERSONAL RESPONSE

Which of the beatitudes do we find most difficult to live? What do you want to remember from last week? What are you looking forward to next week? What are your concerns?

The Gospel at Home

This Week's Gospel: Matthew 5:1-12a

In the Gospel, Jesus climbs on a mountainside to teach the Beatitudes. Those who live by these eight principles will learn about how to live like Jesus. The Sermon on the Mount will show us how to experience happiness even in the most trying times. The lowly are uplifted by these teachings. God gives us life and wants us all to be happy.

Exploring the Gospel Message

Seeds (Preschool): Your child learned that Jesus' teachings will bring us happiness. Ask your child about the Beatitudes, which Jesus taught during the Sermon on the Mount. Together as a family, try to make a list of what the teachings are. If you need help, go to this week's Gospel reading. Talk about how to live the Beatitudes as a family.

Promise (Grades K-1): Your child explored Jesus' teachings that will help us be happy. Discuss what makes each person in your family happy and how that might fit into the Beatitudes. What are some of the times you have celebrated with each member of the family? Could be birthday, Baptisms, or some other milestone. Pray for continued happiness for your family and others in the community.

Good News (Grades 2-3): What kind of blessings has your family experienced that makes you all happy? Those are the kind of things your child's class discussed this week. Talk about your faith, family and friends, and life in general. Ask your child to summarize the story from this week's lesson titled, "A Colorful Gift." Talk about the Beatitudes and include them in your weekly prayers. How do the Beatitudes help us find true happiness?

Venture (Grades 4-6): This week your youngster's class learned about God's Law and Jesus' New Law. Ask your son or daughter to describe what happened in the story, "Sadako and the 1,000 Cranes." The Gospel reading about the Beatitudes teaches us how to be happy. See how many beatitudes your young person can remember. Have your young person describe who Saint John Bosco is. Besides the Beatitudes, discuss the other teachings from Jesus' Sermon on the Mount. End with the Lord's Prayer.

Visions (Grades 7-9): How much do Moses and Jesus have in common? Your young person should be able to answer that. Plus, talk about what happened in this week's story about Martin Luther King Jr. called "When Even the Children Can Lead." How did the people from the 1950s account fit into Jesus' teaching on the Beatitudes? How do the Beatitudes teach us to think like God? Discuss these questions with your young person. What other teachings from the Sermon on the Mount can your youngster share with the family?

Awaken (Teens/Adults): Discover a new level of spiritual growth for parents with Awaken, the new adult level of the Pflaum Gospel Weeklies, developed to deepen your faith journey alongside your children. Scan the QR code to learn more.

Pray Together

Gather the family at the kitchen table. In the center of the table, place the family Bible and a lighted candle. Let each person in the family ask for God's help in spreading the happiness of the Beatitudes.. After each person has a say, all can respond with the words, "Jesus you are the source of all happiness." End with the Lord's Prayer.
